MUSEUM MISSION

Since man first witnessed the soaring bird, he has dreamt of flight. Only in the last hundred years this dream became reality. From Kitty Hawk to the outer reaches of the galaxy, nothing has changed our world more than aviation.

Throughout aviation history, man and machine were called upon to protect another dream, the dream of freedom. With tremendous sacrifice and against great odds, young Americans willingly took to hostile skies. The stories of this effort: the people, the planes, the battles and the courage, reflect the heart of America.

Air Classics chronicles the critical role of aviation and teaches this to the general public and visitors to Chicago land through its unique exhibits, educational programs, and flight operations.
